

Groupe Molior announces a PPP with the gallery Parisian Laundry

Groupe Molior is pleased to announce its public private partnership with the gallery Parisian Laundry. Created in 2004 in an old laundromat dating from the beginning of the 20th century, with a surface area of 15,000 feet, this magnificent industrial building is located in central west Montreal, near the downtown area.

Nick Tedeschi, Owner of the Parisian Laundry, Andrée Duchaine, General Manager of Groupe Molior and Jeanie Riddle, Director of the Parisian Laundry

Groupe Molior and Parisian Laundry share common goals which include supporting innovative works in new media and providing a platform for young artists who are beginning their careers. For two years, the gallery has been showing the works of students completing their Masters in Studio Arts at Concordia University and last spring it presented works by students from the École des arts médiatiques at UQAM. Collaborators include World Press Photo.

Starting this fall, Groupe Molior will be launching the new work Raffi by artist JeanClaude Bustros followed by Formica, an interactive installation by Philomène Longpré.
